PROVO.

Never before has Provo seen such pronounced social activity as in the past week. One of the chief events was the Knight-Allen wedding, which came off on Thursday evening. Miss Inez Knight and Eugene Allen were married in the Salt Lake temple on Wednesday, returning to Provo the same evening. The bride has a large circle of friends. Rarely does one see a young woman whose fortune has seemed to smile on her and miss in so many ways, keep the same unchangeable actions and manners but Mrs. Allen was always so—her friendship never varied. Mr. Allen is making rapid strides along educational lines. The Knight residence presided a scene of love and grandeur that to pen can justly describe. June's supply of roses seemed to all to be on dress parade at this event. The dining room was banked with flowers. In the center of the room a long table with a mirror top was placed, with festoons and garlands around the sides, and arising out of a myriad of ferns and roses stood an immense cut glass vase holding a large bouquet of American Beauties. The table where the bride and groom received the guests was decorated with roses strung on wires, giving the effect of flowers floating around. A curtain of roses and rose leaves was draped on each side. A polished floor was laid on the lawn and the orchestra was seated on a balcony draped with the stars and stripes. The punch bowl was gracefully presided over by Miss Wilkins, who was wearing an exquisite dress of lemon and black lace. The refreshments were delicious. People were present from all over the state.
